

A 10x10 grid heatmap visualization. The grid is composed of 100 squares. The colors represent a scale from red (high) to white (low). The pattern shows a concentration of high values (red and orange) in the top-left quadrant, with a vertical column of red squares on the far left and a horizontal row of red squares at the top. The rest of the grid is mostly white, indicating low values.